BY PATRICE WENDLING
Chicago Bureau

TUCSON, Ariz. — Physicians are divided over whether it is ethical to use free sample medications in their primary care practices, Nancy Sohler, Ph.D., and Dr. Diane McKee reported at the annual meeting of the North American Primary Care Research Group.

Accepting samples was viewed either as being ethically questionable or as a useful way of helping provide health care to low-income patients, according to findings from a study of 24 family medicine and general internal medicine physicians, nurses, and administrators in practices affiliated with a large urban medical center serving low- and middle-income patients in New York.

Interactions with pharmaceutical representatives were viewed as a direct conflict of interest, an influence that could be controlled, or a source of useful information that helped keep the practice up to date on new medications. Of the total, 10 respondents felt that they could control the influence of drug firm representatives by keeping them away from residents, by setting limits on what gifts or favors could be accepted, or by always being mindful that representatives are selling a product, Dr. Sohler said in an interview.

For the respondents who drew a hard ethical line, “it wasn’t that they thought giving out samples (to patients) was unethical, but that it wasn’t good practice,” she said. “They understood why others did it, but they worried about conflicts of interest with their interactions with the reps.”

Those who accepted samples said inadequacies in the health care system forced them to rely on gifts to care for their most needy patients.

All of the respondents evaluated marketing practices from the perspective of protecting and serving their patients, said Dr. Sohler, professor of community health and social medicine, City University of New York (N.Y.). None of the respondents expressed concern that physicians were ignoring clinical symptoms to prescribe the “right drugs.”

The study included in-depth, qualitative interviews and was prompted by an administrative decision at the medical center to ban samples and pharmaceutical representatives from the community practices. That decision left many providers uncertain about how to care for patients without adequate health care coverage.

Others suggested that the policy was changed because the administration didn’t want physicians taking the time to talk to sales representatives, didn’t trust that staff would avoid entering into agreements with pharmaceutical firms, and did want a single policy, because teaching sites had a “no-rep” policy and other sites didn’t need samples.

Dr. Sohler said further study would be needed to determine whether samples help poor patients more than they harm them, and whether representatives influence prescribing practices in mostly helpful or harmful ways.

“The empirical, quantitative evidence isn’t good on whether free medications help or harm our patients,” Dr. Sohler said. “We realize that all marketing has an influence, but we don’t know if it harms our patients.

People are drawing on their different values and perspectives to make a decision. We need hard evidence to make a policy, but in the meantime, we should keep these perspectives in mind as the data come in.”

WANTED
CRUISE SHIP DOCTORS
Alaska/Russia/Pacific

Contact: Dr. Pierre Guibor: (201)392-3438

PHYSICIAN (Internist)
Centre de Salud Familiar La Fe (La Fe) offers comprehensive health-care services in El Paso via eight service sites. La Fe is seeking board certified or board eligible physicians who will be responsible for providing quality health-care services and will assist the chief medical officer in quality improvement and administrative activities. A successful candidate will hold a M.D. or a D.O. degree from an approved and accredited medical school. Must also have successfully completed a 3-year Accredited Residency Program. Competitive salary package. Send CV to: La Fe Human Resources Manager Irma Rangel, 608 S. St. Vrain, El Paso, Texas, 79901. www.lafe-sp.org

Chairperson, Department of Medicine
Chairperson, Department of Medicine sought for 357-bed acute care teaching hospital with Internal Medicine residency. Board certification in Internal Medicine or sub-specialty required. Responsibilities include oversight of departments, specialty, peer review and credentialing processes, collaboration with residency program and medical staff, and Medicine Service Line operations and strategy. Located in Baltimore, Maryland, the hospital has been recognized as a Solucient Top 100 Hospi-tal and is a recipient of the Medicare Excellence Award. Wanda Parker, The HealthField Alliance, 203-778-3333, healthfield@mindspring.com

Kadlec Health System gives you the opportunity to work in a physician-focused environment while living in the heart of the Northwest’s wine country.

Internal Medicine Physicians who join us in Richland, Washington, will enjoy:

• Multi-specialty Clinic or Private Practice
• Hospitalist and Intensivist Programs
• EMR, World Class Imaging Center, Physician Portal, Computerized Charting
• Region’s Only Open Heart Surgery & Interventional Cardiology Programs

Kadlec. More than you imagined.

We invite you to apply by emailing your CV to physician-recruitment@kadlecmed.org or calling us at 509-942-2115 with questions.

EOE

The best of both worlds

—your life and your career.

All Our Best!
KADLEC Health System
www.kadlecmed.org

CONTINUING EDUCATION

11th Annual Postgraduate Course on Pediatric, Adolescent and Young Adult Gynecology
Friday, March 23, 2007
from 8 am to 5 pm
at Mount Sinai Hospital, NYC
Course Director: Albert Alteckhn, MD
Contact: Jeanette Cotto
Program Coordinator
jeannette.cotto@msm.edu
212-731-7950

Disclaimer
INTERNAL MEDICINE News assumes the statements made in classified advertisements are accurate, but cannot investigate the statements and assumes no responsibility or liability concerning their content. The Publisher reserves the right to decline, withdraw, or edit advertisements. Every effort will be made to avoid mistakes, but responsibility cannot be accepted for clerical or printer errors.

Have questions on classifieds? Call Robin Cryan
(800) 379-8785
(212) 633-3150
for more information.